EDITOR'S NOTE

Dear readers,
Dear authors and friends,

After a two-year hiatus caused by Covid-19, our scientific journal resumes its work, driven by the goal of providing an opportunity and a platform for researchers to present the results of their scientific studies. As always, we will be guided by the highest professional scientific and ethical standards, giving opportunities to our young colleagues who are just beginning to develop their scientific production, as well as to already established and recognized scientists.

In this regard our first issue for this year is dedicated to the new challenges of the business world in post-Covid-19 environment context. This new reality is highly changed, it requires new qualities from both managers and experts, it also requires greater flexibility at all organizational levels and adaptability to a constantly changing environment.

Current Issue of the magazine is dedicated to the global economy after Covid-19. We bring to your attention several studies related to leadership and power, the possibilities of digital technologies for interpersonal communication, and the application of different concepts for Administrative Management. In IT Management Section we will find the researches for the open source, Industry 4.0 and their impact on the for transport and energy sectors,

Kind regards of all our readers!
